Improvement Projects For Jaffa and Tel Aviv Shums

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A new bridge to be built across the Hatzvay quarter wall crossing Rehov Hayarkon will be extended to serve Jaffa-bound traffic; and a new road will be constructed to connect Rehov Hertz with the new industrial quarter now going up in Jaffa.

The project, which is the subject of a study by the Municipality during this year in a campaign to improve roads, sanitation, and housing and to provide facilities in Jaffa and the surrounding quarters.

Deputy Mayor E. Shoshita, said a Municipal Council meeting last night, approved the project.

He said half the Municipality's Hatzvay road budget would be used in these areas. Mr. Shoshita said it would cost $2.5 million to build the road and pavement requirements in Jaffa and these quarters.

Another Hatzvay will be spent on improving sewerage systems in these areas, he said.

In the field of housing, negotiations were now under way for the establishment of a joint Municipal-Government company that would also encourage private investments in housing quarters.

During the past three months, some 1,000 persons had been served by the Municipality from displaced persons' housing, he said.

Special Department

Mr. Shoshita noted that the new Municipal management had decided to concentrate all operations concerning Jaffa and the slums in a special Municipal department.

In place of the autonomous authority for Jaffa, development that existed under the old management, he said.

Besides the economy in funds and personnel, this was a step towards maintaining a "municipality" within a "municipality" with unlimited powers vested in one person, Mr. Shoshita said.

Nine new schools, with a total of 80 classrooms, will be set up in Jaffa and the surrounding quarters during the coming year, while another 14 classrooms will be added to existing schools in these areas.

The sum of $1,000,000 will be allocated for libraries, clubs and reading rooms, he added.

Ramat Gan Charged With Violating Water Law

TEL AVIV. — The Tel Aviv District Attorney yesterday filed charges against the Mayor, the Council and the residents of Ramat Gan for allegedly violating the Water Law by overdraining their water quota last year.

The prosecution charged that the Municipality pumped a total of 4 million cu. m. of water from the 18 wells at its disposal during the months April-July 1959. The official quota allotted to Ramat Gan from these wells was 2.5 million cu. m.

At the same time, the District Attorney claimed, the Municipality did not utilize its full quota of 200,000 cu. m. from the Yarkon River diversion project.

Dimona's Water Supply To Be Resumed

DIMONA. — Following the intervention of the Minister of Labour, Dr. Giora Josephthal, and of the Minister of Development, Mr. Mordechai Bentz, the Dimona water company yesterday agreed to resume the regular supply of water to Dimona.

The company had cut off the supply during the major part of the day due to the town's failure to pay outstanding water rates. No agreement on the settlement of the debt has yet been reached.

Racists on Both Sides in South Africa

Current Violence May be Stifled, But Ultimate Prospects are Grim

By COLIN LINDSAY

Johannesburg (AP)—This is the first time in South Africa's history that the two main racial groups have been fighting each other. The violence is the result of a breakdown in the racial balance of the country, and it is a sign that the country is heading for a civil war.

Three million people—white and black—are living in South Africa. The white population is the majority, but it is not the only one. The black population is growing rapidly, and it is becoming more organized. The white population is becoming more racist, and it is becoming more violent.

Tel Aviv-Yafo taxpayers are advised that payment of municipal taxes due by March 15 may be made only by check or cash at the Municipal Tax Collection Department. Banks will accept payment for the current fiscal year (1960-61) only.

Government officials have stepped out of the white camp to announce that the strength of their position is due to support they have been getting from the American and British governments. The government is now in a position to announce that it is not over-whelmed by the crisis.

Top People Powerless Only a minority of white leaders in the government are powerful. The majority of white leaders are powerless. The government is now in a position to announce that it is not over-whelmed by the crisis.

Not all white opinion is by any means as crude as this, but the attitude of defending white supremacy has its roots deep in history. It finds expression in the remarks of the Minister of Justice, Mr. F. C. Steyn, in Parliament last week, that the present troubles are part of a continuing struggle against barbarism.

Government officials have stepped out of the white camp to announce that the strength of their position is due to support they have been getting from the American and British governments. The government is now in a position to announce that it is not over-whelmed by the crisis.

Opposing Camps A possible alternative to the present Minister of Justice, Mr. H. A. Pagan, is Mr. T. M. Danga. Danga is a member of the African National Congress, and he is a member of the African National Congress.

Until all the Congress leaders were arrested on Wednesday, the African National Congress was fighting a hard battle to retain its popularity among the Africans. Its main difficulty was its policy of inter-racial cooperation.

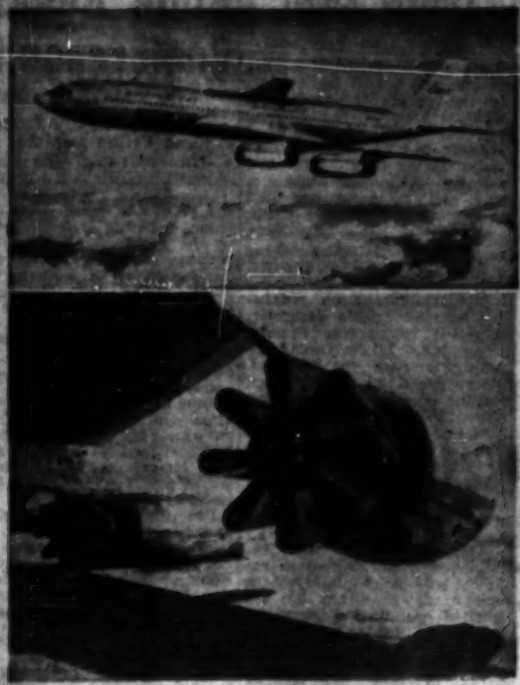

Physical Danger It is not only dangerous for any white person to travel through the African townships, but it is also dangerous for any black person to travel through the white townships.

Two other leading causes of alarm are the violence that has broken out in the townships. The first is the violence that has broken out in the townships. The second is the violence that has broken out in the townships.

They are tough and capable of great physical brutality. They despise the older African leaders who have brought us to the present situation. They are racist and they are violent.

THE drought has been terrible and almost unprecedented, as everyone knows. Last summer, by contrast, was unusually cool. You are welcome to a house in your home that the storm has brought with it.

Most certainly we all, whether in Europe, America or Israel, very gladly gave as much as possible as long as there was a real need. However, today we have our own State and the land belongs to us.

spent the rest of the night delivering the notices. He found practically all her customers, the boys rather than the girls, and her husband was better by the morning. The Army was so impressed that they promised her a reward. We think they should make it a prize for the boy.

THE name of the cashier in the Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem is "HARD UP," which may be translated into English as "HARD UP."

WE were going into the matter of the legal status of territorial waters recently, and discovered that the origin of the "three-mile limit," developed in the 18th century, was based on the theory that three miles was the range of a cannon shot and that "the dominion of the land ends where the power of its arm ends." One of these systematic Germans of the 18th century suggested that the limits should be extended to gun ranges increased, which illustrates the pitfalls of logic uncoloured by imagination.

GEOGRAPHY is in any case a variable quantity. A friend writes from Rangoon that the KLM publicity was distributed there for use in India does not show the line to Israel, on which our friend happened on one occasion to have travelled. Nor does the KLM publicity show the line of branches and agencies quoted by the pamphlet. The many guests from India who visit us presumably use some other line unless they also read the American mass circulation magazines in which KLM has no hesitation to announce its Tel Aviv flying routes and offices.

MR. Ben-Gurion collected a remarkable bouquet of compliments on his trip, ranging from the speed of which he can run up and down stairs to his assurance that other countries exist in this part of the world in addition to Israel, and right down to a passionate Jordanian complaint that no Arab politician would dream of working as hard. The most curious compliment has been circulating on the radio of the Arab countries, and has been much debated in Nazareth. It says that he is going to resign shortly because the interests of the Western powers would like him to do so "in the interests to place with the Arabs." That would place the way for the return of Mr. Sharvit, whom the Arabs like as a "reasonable man" as a rare place of praise from an enemy.

MARGINAL COMMENT

Meyer Levin v. Otto Frank

By Philip Gillon

READING Mr. Meyer Levin's Open Letter to Otto Frank and the subsequent items in The Jerusalem Post, I am tempted to echo the wistful cry of the Irishman: "Is this a private fight or may anybody join in?" But as Mr. Levin bases his present attack on morality and not on his legal rights, it seems that bystanders are entitled to get down into the scrum. I was with Mr. Otto Frank when he dined with the children at the Youth Aliya village of Mitzanah. Although 71 years old, Mr. Frank had swum in Elliot at 7 o'clock that morning; 12 hours later he had energy and time not only to address the children but also to give an interview to two astute journalists, the editor and reporter of the Mitzanah newspaper. His charm and serenity completely captured a young audience that can hardly be suspected of being anti-Semitic.

IN substance he said that Anne Frank was too young to be a member of a Zionist youth group before the War broke out and hardly in a position to join one afterwards. Her older sister had been an ardent member of a Zionist youth movement. He himself had always been a supporter of Zionism and was profoundly thrilled and excited by what he had seen in Israel—everywhere he went he thought of what Anne would have said had she been there. But, he went on, he thought that Anne had become an important symbol to the youth of the world far transcending her specific interest to the Jewish people, although he had never attempted, and would never attempt, to belittle the significance of her Jewishness. On the other hand, 20,000 copies of the book had been sold, for example, in Japan; the play had been acted in a hundred countries. He thought that all young people, Jew and Gentile alike, found something in the book that answered their deepest needs. Hence he was dedicating his life to setting up the Anne Frank House in the former hideaway in Holland; he planned that this should become a centre for youth from all over the world, irrespective of race, colour or creed, a stronghold of middle-of-the-road liberalism against anti-Semitism. He added that the youth of Europe, unlike that of Israel (which he described with idealism and purpose), is in desperate need of such a symbol as Anne Frank.

THAT young people of Mitzanah did not find this outlook revolting or immoral or a denial of Judaism, it seems to me that only the most fanatical will insist that the Anne Frank House must be in Israel and that it is unforgivable for Mr. Frank to see his daughter as a symbol for all rather than of Jewishness for some. It may be that he is mistaken, but surely that is his privilege. In fact, at first sight it seems that the entire question of how he visualizes the importance of Anne Frank is his own business. After all, she was his daughter and he is her literary executor. By what right can Mr. Levin dictate to a parent how his daughter shall be presented to the world?

ON second thought, it may be argued that the moment he published "Diary," he gave Anne Frank to the world. We can debate whether Sholem Yosef is a symbol of England or of the world (or, on occasion, of Germany). Any writer who ventures his works into the great world must stand for a certain interference with his private life. On this basis, Mr. Levin is perhaps entitled to assert his point of view that the Anne Frank of his interpretation of the "Diary" is a Jewish symbol and not a universal one, in opposition to her father's view. Does that other great-souled martyr, Joan of Arc, belong only to France or to all of us?

BUT it is hard to see how this controversy can concern us at this stage. The play and the film have been presented. Mr. Levin has made his case. Time will show whose judgment was right. In the meanwhile, Mr. Levin's attacks are only undignified and irritating. He would please us far more by writing another "Compulsion" and leaving poor Anne Frank to develop into whatever sort of symbol she can. Ashdod, April 4.

'Apartheid' No Solution

Davar (Histadrut) writes that South Africa will do well to gauge correctly the temper of the world. Apartheid is no solution, asserts the paper, any more than would be a proposal that the whites place themselves at the mercy of non-white rule. The solution should be sought somewhere between these two poles and both sides should seek it sincerely and boldly.

Haaretz (National Religious) writes that the disturbances cause us in Israel a great deal of concern, also calls to the attention of world Jewry that South Africa's thriving Jewish community, with its roots deep in Judaism and its unstinting support for the State of Israel, may be affected by the unrest.

Leumiyah (Abud Ha'avoda) writes that the days we set aside to honour the Jewish communities abroad come to remind us that most of the Jewish nation is still dispersed. Haaretz observes that Mr. Khrushchev does not seem unduly put out by France's atomic blasts which are being so roundly condemned by "progressive forces" all over the world, including our own Communists. Mapam and Abud Ha'avoda, it appears that the leader of all the Soviets finds it most important to come to some sort of understanding with "im-
